DAY 04 (Thu): IN AMRITSAR

- Breakfast at the hotel
- Morning: Visit the Golden temple, Jalianwala Bagh
- Afternoon: Excursion to Wagah border

Morning, walk through some narrow streets to the temple - on the way keep an eye out above you as there are some very old buildings with very intricate wood carvings. The original Sikh temple in Amritsar was built here at the end of the 16th century. The temple was rebuilt in 1764 by Maharaja Ranjit Singh and 100kg of gold was added in 1830 giving rise to its name 'The Golden Temple'. Your guide will show you around the main area of the temple and explain the history and layout including the vast dining halls where all visitors, regardless of their religion, are invited to eat together.

Perhaps the most incredible part are the kitchens run by volunteers, you will see vast cauldrons full of dhal, groups of ladies rolling out chapattis, meanwhile the noise in the background is the endless washing of plates, sweets are also available and a non-stop supply of Chai all free for anyone who wants. You will get an opportunity to volunteer in the community kitchen.

Next 15 minute walk will take you to Jalianwala bagh, the site of a massacre in 1919 when the British opened fire on a peaceful gathering of protestors. Mahatma Gandhi subsequently called for a nationwide strike and formed the Non-Cooperation Movement, which became a key event in India's struggle for independence. The area is now a park with a memorial to the men, women, and children who died.

Also visit Ram Bag, a beautiful garden consisting of the amazing summer palace of Maharaja Ranjit Singh. There is a beautiful museum exhibiting unique oil paintings, miniatures, coins, weapons, and objects relating to the Sikh period.

After lunch at local restaurant, drive to Wagah border to attend one of the world's oddest spectator activity involving a pompous display of military bravado at the Flag Ceremony. The "Retreat," a high-kicking, tow-stepping, quick-marching ceremony wherein the Indian and Pakistani flags are lowered on either side of the only border that remains open between the two hostile countries provides a rare look at relations between the two countries.

While the dungeons were used by the Nizam to imprison his worst enemies among whom were several of his sons and at least two of his wives.
